Course Description: This is a course for the Master of Education in Inclusive Education: Equity and Social Justice 2026 Cohort

This course encourages participants to develop a critical research orientation to their professional work while acquiring a facility for designing projects and analyzing current scholarship in Social Justice education. Students will explore decolonizing research methodologies and methods that are culturally relevant, culturally responsive, anti-racist, and equity-affirming. Throughout the course, students will work towards the development of a proposal for their thesis or Capstone Projects.

Qualifications: The successful applicant must possess at minimum, a Master's degree in Education or a related graduate degree connected to equity and social justice. Preference will be given to those applicants who possess a PhD, or who are engaged in a doctoral program in the fields of Education, Social Justice, or Equity Education or relevant related areas of study in equity, diversity, and inclusion. Extensive experience leading research and teaching from within, or in allyship with, equity-seeking communities is required. Lived experience of marginalized identities is recognized as important knowledge that is relevant to this position and is considered an asset. Experience conducting research through the lens of decolonization and equity in educational contexts is required.

Only short-listed candidates will be contacted.

Competition closes July 6, 2026 (at midnight)

The University invites applications from all qualified individuals; however, candidates eligible to work in Canada shall be given priority. First consideration shall be given to internal candidates as defined in Articles 58.11 (b)(i) of the Collective Agreement. The University encourages applications from Mi'kmaq and other Indigenous Peoples; African Nova Scotians; African Canadians; persons with disabilities; racialized groups; women; persons of any minority sexuality, minority gender identity, or minority gender expression; and all intersections of these identities; and such other groups as may be specified by federal or provincial employment equity legislation. Acadia University embraces the principles of equity, diversity, and inclusion as fundamental in creating an expansive academic environment and champions diverse knowledge systems as pillars of academic excellence.

Applicants for positions at Acadia University shall be required to complete and submit the confidential Employment Equity Self-Identification Form (Employment Equity Self-Identification Form) (Article 3.61(i)). These forms shall be processed by Human Resources. Information provided on these forms shall be held in confidence and may only be used for employment equity purposes as agreed in Article 43.35(b) and 43.35(d)(ii). Self-identification data collected for a given employment competition shall be destroyed after all requirements to preserve documentation for that competition have expired. Only candidates who have submitted a self-identification form can be considered as members of designated groups as described in Article 3.20. The form shall include the option to not self-identify, but candidates must submit the form with their applications.
